

PomPom Pass It On!

We want people of different generations to work together during #GIW25, and to capture this with a cool video! One idea is to make PomPoms together. All you need is some wool and cardboard. Watch this handy video to learn how to make them.

Film Your 'Pass It On'

Once you've made your PomPom, use your phone in portrait mode to film as you pass it around. The Pom Pom must start off-screen and be thrown in from the right of the first person, who will say which country they are from. It will then be passed left. The last person will throw the PomPom off-screen to their left.

Send Your Video!

Send your video to your Country Lead, whose contact info can be found here. The clips will be stitched together so that it appears that our PomPoms travelled around the world, celebrating the truly global nature of Global Intergenerational Week!
